Dear Cep Jandi Anwar,

I am writing to you with regards to the following manuscript that has been submitted to Jurnal Ekonomi Malaysia

ID : 39820

Title : Heterogeneity Effect of Central Bank Independence on Asset Prices:
Evidence from Developing Countries

We have carefully considered your paper and the feedback from the reviewers. Attached please find the reviews of your manuscript. For your information, the revised paper in a specified format, and a summary of amendments made are due to us in 10 days (Due: 18 December 2020).

However, there is a possibility that your paper will be published in our December 2020 issue if you send the revision earlier.

Please ensure to follow our manuscript template before submitting the revised manuscript. Failure to email us by this date and follow our manuscript template may cause your article to be published in the following issue depending on the editor's decision.

It is important for you to respond to the recommendations and comments of the reviewers to be accepted for publication. In addition, please;

1. follow our journal format (see attached file or journal's website)
2. send your manuscript for professional English/BM editing to ensure it is free from grammatical, punctuation and spelling errors. Failure to address this may delay the publication of your paper (please attach proof of payment)*.
3. convert all footnotes to endnotes
4. highlight or use red font for each amendment or correction made on the manuscript to clearly indicate the revision being made before uploading the file.
5. outline point-by-point response to reviewers' comment in a separate document (see attached file). Please take note that failure to address reviewers' comments will result in immediate return or rejection of the paper.
6. update your citations and references with journal articles published in the last 3 years.
7. comply with our similarity index restriction of not more than 15 percent.

Do not hesitate to contact me for any queries on above. Please note that the proofreading costs is borne by the author.

Thank you for considering Jurnal Ekonomi Malaysia for the publication of your research. I hope the outcome of this specific submission will encourage you to work towards the submission of future manuscripts.

Yours sincerely,

Jurnal Ekonomi Malaysia JEM

DETAILED COMMENTS TO THE AUTHOR(S)

Please provide constructive feedback to the author(s). In the case in which revisions are recommended, please include details of recommended revisions as well as an outline of specific concerns and suggestions. Please refer to page number where relevant.:.

This paper has explored the role of Central banks independence in influencing the financial asset prices in selected developing countries. The manuscript has some language errors and it need to be rechecked before publication.

1. The title should include "selected" developing countries, because the article has only chosen seven developing countries out of many.
2. It has been observed in Introduction section that the paragraphs are bit lengthy, specifically the first para. Author should reconsider to shorten it to grasp the attention of the reader.
3. It would be interesting if author could include an additional paragraph in introduction section to highlight the challenges in central banks independence explicitly in developing countries.
4. Author(s) should also provide explanation in Introduction section that how this study is different from previous studies? in order to highlight the contribution of this study.
5. The literature section should include studies explicitly focusing the central banks independence as a challenge in developing countries comparing to the developed countries. Literature should also include some recent studies as well.
6. Methodology section should further explain how PVAR is estimated with mean group estimator. Often it is recommended to have equal number of groups and observations to do panel estimations, however in this paper the number of groups are relatively smaller (i.e. 7) what is the explanation? Secondly, it would be interesting to know the justification of author in selecting these specific countries for this study.
7. The conclusion section can be improved by including some policy implications exclusive to developing countries.

Dear Editor Jurnal Ekonomi Malaysia,

Thank you for your email to inform me of the reviewers' comments.

I have revised my manuscript based on reviewers' comments and your suggestion. Here, I attach a revised manuscript and response author to reviewers' comments.

Regarding your suggestion in point (2) "Please attach proof of payment". Then I have a question. Do I need to pay a publication fee at this stage? if yes, please send information where I have to pay for it.

I hope my paper can be published in the December 2020 issue.

Best regards,

Cep Jandi Anwar

Dear Editor,

Thank you for your email.

Regarding the manuscript that you sent to me. I found 4 issues that should be corrected.

1. Lines 2-3 in ABSTRACT, which I highlighted in red. it should be deleted.
2. Lines 2-4 in ABSTAK, which I highlighted in red. it should be deleted.
3. On page 68, "it" should be in normal font, not in the subscript font. I highlighted it in yellow.
4. On page 68, "be a" and "vector" should be in normal font, not in the italic font. I highlighted it in yellow.

Here I attached the revised manuscript.

Thank you very much for your help.

Dear Editor Jurnal Ekonomi Malaysia,

Thank you for publishing my article in Jurnal Ekonomi Malaysia Volume 55 Issue 2, 2021. The title of my paper is "Heterogeneity Effect of Central Bank Independence on Asset Prices: Evidence from Selected Developing Countries.

After I read carefully, I saw a typo in that paper related to the revised and accepted date (Revised 17 June 2021; Accepted 22 May 2021). It looks a little bit strange that the accepted date is earlier than the revised date. Is it true or a typo?

Thank you for your help.
